A Fair Trade Story

Nina's Banana's

Written and illustrated by Evie Rye

There once lived a kind girl called Nina, she lived with her 3 sisters, 7 brothers, Mother, Father, Aunt, Uncle and her great, great Grandmother in Panama. They all lived in one house together so times were never boring.

But they had a problem. They worked really hard all day from when the sun rose to when the sun set. They got payed hardly any money for their produce and they had very poor working conditions.

They all worked on a banana farm, where they picked banana's all day under the hot sun. At the end of the day they were all so exhausted.

One day, the Fair Trade stepped in to help them get better working conditions and to get a fair amount of money for the fruit they produced.

Now Nina and her siblings have their own bedrooms, her Uncle and Aunt have brought their own house and have moved out and her great, great grandmother has moved to Italy and lived in a retirement home. They all finally got what they wanted and their lives have never been better.
